APPLICATION FOR INTERNATIONAL DRIVING PERMIT

International Driving Permits are issued by the AA in terms of the International Conventions relative to Road Traffic of 1926, 1949 and 1968 to holders of valid driver's licences issued in South Africa.

Although International Driving Permits are recognised internationally, holders must carry their valid local licences when travelling abroad. Many countries throughout the world recognise visitors' national driving licences. It is, however, recommended that an International Driving Permit also be carried. The permit is multilingual, thus convenient for use in non-English speaking countries. It is generally familiar to law enforcement officers and some car rental companies may insist on customers having an International Driving Permit.

While the AA takes every precaution to ensure that the information supplied is correct, it does not accept any responsibility or liability in this regard.

It is the applicant's responsibility to verify and check the information contained therein. In addition applicants should have the International Driving Permit validated by the relevant authorities in the country where they intend using the International Driving Permit and determine whether it is recognised and what the legal requirements for driving and using a vehicle are.

Possession of a local public driving permit does not automatically entitle the holder to drive public service vehicles or convey passengers for gain abroad. Such persons should check with the authorities of the countries concerned and obtain whatever additional documentation is required before entering into such activities.

International Driving Permits may not be postdated, extended or renewed and are not issued to persons under 18 years of age. The holder of a driver's licence issued in any SADC country need not obtain an International Driving Permit for use in the other SADC countries in which the driver's licence is recognised.

An IDP has to be accompanied by a valid South African driver's licence or temporary licence – when travelling internationally.

According to the National Road Traffic Act of 1996, a three (3) month grace period is provided if the driver has applied for renewal of his or her SA Driver's licence prior to the local licence expiring. This grace period entitles the driver for driving in South Africa only. According to the United Nations Convention relative to Road Traffic of 1926, 1949 and 1968, signed and agreed to by South Africa, an International Driving Permit may not be valid or issued after the expiry date of the corresponding domestic permit. The AA of SA can therefore not issue an International Driving Permit on neither an expired licence nor on the three (3) month grace period.

The AA of SA does not accept any claim that may arise in the event of the applicant not having obtained the necessary documentation.

An IDP is highly recommended, when driving internationally.

If further information is required, we recommend that you contact the relevant authorities in the countries you intend visiting.

PHOTOGRAPHS

Recent identical standard size passport or id-type photographs are required. The number of photographs needed depends on the countries the applicant wishes to visit – check the list of countries in the adjoining panel to ascertain the number of permits required and then refer to the table below. Instant photographs are taken at the AA's Travel Experience Stores for a nominal charge.

AA MEMBER BENEFITS WHEN MOTORING ABROAD

The AA of South Africa is affiliated to motoring organisations worldwide. A letter of introduction is issued by the AA of South Africa which entitles AASA members to certain services when travelling abroad for less than three months. These services may vary from club to club, and to obtain the use of them AA members must present their current membership card bearing the FIA logo. As the type, structure and organisation of the FIA clubs, as well as the level of services they provide, may vary from country to country, the FIA has endeavoured to divide its member clubs into three different categories (A, B and C).

1) CATEGORY A - CLUBS

These clubs agree to provide all services, including breakdown services, but some of them may request a call-out fee. Some clubs might be able to offer more favourable conditions on the basis of bilateral agreements.

2) CATEGORY B - CLUBS

These clubs agree to provide, in addition to the free basic service, more detailed touring and travel services including maps. These clubs are also expected to provide services to visiting members at the same COST and on the same terms that they supply these products to their members.

3) CATEGORY C - CLUBS

These clubs agree to provide members of foreign FIA clubs, with free basic touring and general information, advice and, as far as possible, some practical help.

Refer to www.aa.co.za for latest updates.
